

Explaining That Income Tax

Major Details About the New Levies and How They Apply in Individual Cases.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Your individual income tax is going to give you a jolt, so you'd better start figuring out now just how much of a bite it'll take out of your pocketbook.

In the first place, you'll have to take into account the fact that your paycheck is going to be tapped before you get it, starting Jan. 1, because then your employer will begin deducting the 5 per cent special "victory tax"—and although that tax provides for deducting part of the money, the amount you can get any of the rebate is March 15, 1943.

Let's concentrate now on the taxes on your 1942 income which you'll have to finance next year at the same time this victory levy (along with the social security deduction of one per cent) is being whacked off your paycheck.

We'll start with:

1. Exemptions. Except for persons in active service with the armed forces, the new exemption figures are for single persons, $2,000; for married persons, $2,500; plus $250 for each dependent. An individual in the armed forces below the grade of commissioned officer gets an additional wartime allowance of $250 if single and $300 if married.

2. Deductions. You'll get the usual deductions (contributions to charity, certain taxes you've paid)—including sales taxes, interest paid, and debts, necessary expenses—with an important addition:

If you've had medical expenses amounting to more than 5 per cent of your net income—and not compensated by insurance—you can deduct the amount in excess of 5 per cent. There's a limitation, though—$2,500 for head of a family, $1,250 otherwise.

It's worth noting that the definition of medical expenses is broad—covering dentistry and surgery, hospital and health insurance.

The 10 per cent earned income credit is retained for normal tax purposes.

3. Rates. The new normal tax rate is 6 per cent. The surtax, beginning with the first dollar of net income, a 1 per cent exemption, starts at 15 per cent. In the $2,000-$4,000 bracket (15-16 per cent); $4,000-$6,000, 20 per cent; $6,000-$8,000, 21 per cent; $8,000-$10,000, 22 per cent, and so on up to a maximum of 82 per cent.

4. Payments. As usual, March 15 is the deadline and you can pay in the usual quarterly installments. You and your wife can file jointly or separately. If your gross income is $3,000 or less, and comes entirely from compensation for personal services, interest and annuities, you can pay on a simplified, short form of return, which makes allowances of approximately 6 per cent in lieu of deductions. (Note: If a taxpayer has income from rents or royalties, he no longer can use this form.)

This time you won't have to go before a salary and take an oath of non-competition. A declaration is made by the taxpayer that the return is true and correct.

Some illustrations:

Joe Let's get down to cases. Let's take young Joe Doe, single, making $1,000 a year. Assume he has $100 in deductions. From the $900 net income remaining, he subtracts his personal exemption of $2,000, leaving $190 taxable. The surtax starts then and there—15 per cent of $190—and he sets down as his first tax figure $32.

Now he goes back to the taxable $190 and deducts his earned income credit ($50 per cent of his net income) of $450. The remaining $310 is subject to the 6 per cent normal tax, or $18.60. Joe adds the $32 and $18.60, and finds he owes Uncle Sam $70.60.

Now take Bill Smith, married, no children, an income of $2,000. Let's say his deductions are $200, leaving $1,800 net income. He subtracts his exemption of $2,500, figures 13 per cent on the taxable $600, and finds his surtax is $78.

Again, he takes the taxable total of $800, deducts his earned income credit of $120, leaving $680. Six per cent of that figure is $25.20—total owed, then, is $103.20.

Then there's Oscar Zilch, married, one child, earning $3,000. Supposing his deductions are $200, he has $2,800 net. His exemption is $2,500 plus $250 for the child, leaving $1,150 taxable. At 13 per cent, his surtax is $149.50. Subtracting his earned income credit of $270 from the taxable figure of $1,150, he gets a figure of $880, of which 6 per cent is $52.80. Adding this to his surtax, he finds his obligation is $202.30.

If, however, Oscar had two children and the same income of $3,000, he would have $800 taxable, his surtax then would be $104, his normal tax (on $800 less $270, or $530) would be $31.80 and his total tax $135.80.

And so on. The greater the income, the bigger the chunk coming out of it.

Education Week To Be Observed in Marion

Although American Education Week will be observed nationally Nov. 8 to 11, Marion education group has planned a local observance for this week in connection with the two-nail school levy campaign. Miss Gladys Edelman, chairman of a committee of the Marion Education association, will be in charge.

Marion ministers were asked to stress the theme, "Education for Free Men" in their pulpits yesterday and radio station WMBH has scheduled a series of broadcasts with Marion citizens participating. Art classes of Miss Edith Keeler and Miss Josephine Morris have prepared "visit your school" posters and invitations to parents to see the theme of each day developed individually by each school.

Convicted Slayer To Remarry Ex-Mate

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Eleanor Williams, 25, blond disc girl who was convicted of slaying her sweetheart, will remarry her former husband in a jail ceremony tomorrow, providing the warden gives his official sanction.

The jail wedding announcement followed Mrs. Williams' conviction for manslaughter yesterday in the slaying of Gordon McNaughton, 35, former Boston Red Sox pitcher, after she had tricked him to a hotel room he shared with another blond, Mrs. Dorothy Moss. The former husband, Clarence Williams, a telegrapher, said he wanted to marry her "right away" despite the 1 to 15 years mandatory prison sentence the conviction carried. They have a daughter, 5.

Appeal Made For Knitters To Help Men in U. S. Navy

A request for many more garments has been received at the national headquarters of Bundles for Bluejackets by Miss Maude Gorman, president of the Marion organization.

The Chicago area, largest naval training district in the world, to which the Marion organization sends clothing, is in need of 1,500 sweaters and helmets, an unlimited number of water caps, scarves and gloves, Miss Gorman said. Supplies are urgently needed at other naval bases. Rear Admiral Jacobs of Washington has announced.

A shipment of yarn has been received here and women desiring to help make it into garments may get it from Miss Gorman at her home, 429 South Main street. Contributions to the organization for purchase of yarn will be welcome, Miss Gorman said.

The finished articles will go to naval recruits at the Great Lakes

Who Armed Japan?

MY OPPONENT HAS ASKED:

"HOW WOULD HITLER AND HIROHITO, THE JAP, HAVE VOTED IF THEY HAD BEEN IN CONGRESS?"

THEY WOULD HAVE VOTED "AYE," JUST AS MY OPPONENT MR. FLETCHER DID WHEN HE VOTED FOR H. R. 6976 OF THE 73rd CONGRESS, WHICH GAVE JAPAN HER OPPORTUNITY TO ARM HERSELF AT THE EXPENSE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

As a direct result of that legislation, Japan acquired seven hundred million dollars worth of United States iron, steel, copper, tin, cotton, petroleum, aviation gasoline, motor vehicle, aircraft, machine tools, fire-arms and ammunition. With these materials Japan prepared for her Pearl Harbor attack. Japan not only acquired this vast amount of vital war goods, but acquired 40% of it at no cost to herself. We made her an out-right gift of 280 million dollars worth of these war supplies. That gift of 280 million dollars was enough to more than pay for the 8 million tons of iron and steel, the 480 thousand tons of copper, the 92 thousand tons of tin and the 18 1/4 million dollars worth of aircraft and parts she procured in the United States.

Data furnished by the War, Navy and Commerce Departments and the Congressional Library shows that from 8 million tons of steel and iron Japan could construct a combat fleet four times the size of our own or a navy consisting of:

64 battleships
20 aircraft carriers
68 heavy cruisers

92 light cruisers
664 destroyers
432 submarines

After building this immense fleet, Japan would still have left from that 8 million tons of iron and steel enough to manufacture:

1,000 small tanks (30 ton)
1,000 large tanks (70 ton)
1,000 mosquito boats
1,000 large sub chasers
1,000 small anti-aircraft guns
1,000 large anti-aircraft guns
10,000 jeeps
100,000 machine guns

1,000,000 machine gun helmets
400,000 shells (2,000 lbs.)
10,000,000 rifles
10,000,000 shells (105 MM)
10,000,000 artillery shells (5 lbs.)
10,000,000 artillery shells (10 lbs.)
30,000,000 shells (20mm)

Now Japan is shooting this steel and copper back at American Soldiers. Soldiers from the 8th Ohio Congressional District.

And now, Mr. Fletcher is asking the support of the mothers and fathers of these boys.

REMEMBER MR. FLETCHER VOTED FOR H. R. 6976, THE LAW THAT ARMED JAPAN AGAINST AND AT THE EXPENSE OF THE UNITED STATES.

REMEMBER ALSO WHEN YOU GO TO THE POLLS NEXT TUESDAY THAT CONGRESSMAN SMITH'S RECORD SHOWS HE HAS BITTERLY OPPOSED AND CONSISTENTLY WORKED FOR THE REPEAL OF H. R. 6976, THE LAW THAT ARMED JAPAN.

Metzenbaum Seeks To Break Party Jinx in Ohio's Twenty-Second District

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24. — From the campaign offices two blocks from downtown Cleveland, James Metzenbaum is seeking the right to represent the 22nd congressional district.

Republican Mrs. Bolton, the district's first congresswoman, has represented the district since 1940. She took over the job at her husband's death. Metzenbaum, a Cleveland lawyer for 33 years, has been in public office 22 years and a Cleveland lawyer for 33 years.

The district, one of the most populous in the United States, includes parts of Cleveland, all of Cuyahoga county, and parts of Lake and Geauga counties. It is traditionally Republican, having gone Democratic only once in the last 32 years. That gives Mrs. Bolton the nominal edge in November's pre-election guessing, but she nevertheless is spearheading a vigorous campaign — via speeches, billboards, personal letters, radio announcements, street car cards and pamphlets.

She sent out 7,000 letters asking recipients to forward to her the names of others to whom she might address similar letters.

Seated at a broad desk in her Hanna building suite, she smiles frequently and her blue eyes set off her gray hair as she telephones supporters.

She has coupled "victory is our first concern" with "cutting of non-war expenditures is essential" in her campaign literature.

Metzenbaum, a 3 foot 1 1/2 inch bundle of energy and aggressiveness, is making numerous radio talks. He has attacked what he calls "this congresswoman's hostile attitude toward the President, and her votes against preparedness." He cites her pre-Pearl Harbor votes on lease-lend and selective service, among other measures, and asks his audience: "Shouldn't there be in congress those who come with new and co-operating energy to drive and unrelentingly fight for an early victory?"

He works intently at the Union Commerce building suite he shares with several other attorneys.

Both Cleveland Natives

Metzenbaum is 59 and Mrs. Bolton 57. Both were born in Cleveland and have lived here all their lives, but only the other day, at a bipartisan forum, they met for the first time and exchanged greetings.

Mrs. Bolton declares she's being called an isolationist "because I happened to disagree with the administration five times."

"Of course I'm not New Dealer," she says.

PRICE CONTROL SLOWS LIVING COST RISE

But Increase Has Not Been Entirely Stopped.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25. — Price control has slowed but not stopped, as yet, the wartime rise in the most of the food basket, market statistics showed today.

Market prices of important agricultural products that appear in processed form at grocery and meat counters varied from slight losses to gains by comparison with levels prior to passage of the new anti-inflation law three weeks ago.

Value of the nation's record 1942 grain crop and huge population of hogs has been reduced millions of dollars since passage of the law, partly as a result of indirect effect of limitations on wholesale and retail prices of foods manufactured from them.

About 80 per cent of all foodstuffs are now under ceilings in consumer channels.

Since the price control bill became law and since the extension of ceilings on foods previously unaffected, including flour, dairy products and eggs, grain prices have declined 4 to 5 cents a bushel, hogs about 1 cent a pound.

On the other hand, beef cattle have advanced slightly, average prices reaching a high for the past 14 years. Lambs are about 1 cent a pound higher and eggs about 1/2 cent a dozen higher.

Most types of poultry have shown little change, but some, like hens, are up as much as 3 cents a pound. Potatoes are unchanged to slightly higher. Butter is unchanged. Butter and egg prices are at ceiling levels.

MAHONING VALLEY DAM IS DEDICATED

Reservoir To Hold Water Supply for Steel Mills.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 26. — Dedicated as an "Example of one good thing that has come out of the war," the new $6,600,000 Berlin dam today was placed under guard while workmen rushed its completion.

The public yesterday got its last look at the project for the war's duration. Some 15,000 persons turned out for dedication ceremonies at which Gov. Brecker declared the industry increase war production and for a longer time would help solve the problem of the receding underground water table.

Built under the supervision of army engineers, the dam will impound waters of the Mahoning river northwest of Berlin Center. It is intended to provide a constant water supply for the Mahoning valley's steel mills and control floods.

When its gates are closed, the river will be backed up over a 10-square-mile area extending southwestward to Alliance. The 6,500-acre reservoir will hold 28 billion gallons of water.

In obtaining a congressional appropriation for the project, Youngstown civic leaders and steel executives asserted 100,000 tons of production were lost last summer when the river was low and its waters too hot for efficient operations.

she says, "Sometimes I'm not even a good Republican. But I am an American."

She asserts the administration still has "no look-ahead, no over-all plan for winning the war." That was demonstrated, she holds, by diverse administration views at different times on the drafting of 18 and 19 year old men. The mother of two soldier sons, she thinks it "shameful to send 18 year old boys into the same training camps with 25 and 30 year old men."

Metzenbaum, before going to the state senate in 1935, served on the board of zoning appeals, the city planning commission and the Cleveland board of education. He is the author of a book on zoning. In the senate he drafted the school foundation law and was a leading supporter of the unemployment compensation act.

Two Papers Back Him

He has received the editorial support of two of Cleveland's three daily newspapers—the Plain Dealer and the Press favoring his election and the News supporting Mrs. Bolton.

Metzenbaum says the traditional Republican majority of the 22nd is on the decline, and that this gives him confidence of winning.

Mrs. Bolton is one of Ohio's wealthiest women, her financial interests running a gamut from dairy farming to stockholding in various Cleveland enterprises. She lives on an 110-acre estate in Lyndhurst, has another home in Florida, and has made numerous benefactions, including a $1,500,000 endowment for Western Reserve university's school of nursing.

She has a financial advisor to handle details of her varied interests—"I'm too busy being congressman."

She laughs when an interviewer mentions reports that she's thinking of running for U. S. senator two years hence, against Senator Robert A. Taft.

"Ohio has two excellent senators," she says.

An Iowa man has invented a graduated measuring stick to determine the amount of gain in life by measuring the depth and multiplying the figures by the area of the top of the bin.

LIQUOR PRICES UP

NOV. 1 TO MEET TAX

Draught Beer Only Beverage Not Affected.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—With the sole exception of draught beer, the consumer will begin paying more for alcoholic beverages—from packaged liquor to a "straight" drink—beginning Nov. 1.

The office of price administration disclosed today in outlining methods by which distillers, wholesalers and retailers may pass on to the consumer increased federal excise taxes provided in the recently enacted tax bill.

In the case of draught beer, OPA said the amount of the tax increase was too small to pass on to the consumer.

OPA cautioned distributors against increasing their ceiling prices more than the tax increase.

The tax rise on domestic whiskeys will not be uniform, since it is based on proof. The retailer thus may increase his ceiling prices 50 cents a quart for 100 proof, 45 cents for 90 proof and 40 cents for 80 proof.

Other tax increases include: sweet wines, 10 cents a gallon; dry wines, 2 cents a gallon; champagne, 3 cents a half pint; beer, $1 a barrel.

Beginning Nov. 1, bars may increase their prices for the usual 2-ounce "jigger" by 3 cents for each "straight" drink of 90 proof do-metest whiskey. Cocktails and highballs are not subject to price control.

Donald Hammond, executive secretary of the Association of Maryland Distillers, said in Baltimore that distillers had instituted a voluntary rationing plan to prevent a liquor shortage.

He estimated that the nation's present warehouse stocks of 529,000 gallons would be exhausted in three years if not continued at the same rate in the last year.

His Record Of Bad Judgment Shows You How

Congressman Frederick C. Smith

FAILED AMERICA

When America Was In Danger

In Strong Editorial The Cincinnati Enquirer Denounced Congressman Dr. Frederick C. Smith of Marion for "Fantastic Misrepresentation. The Enquirer says Congress Smith's Speech Against "Military Training Was "Myopic If Not Unpatriotic."

Don't Let Big Full-Page Ads and Radio Talks

Of Congressman Dr. Frederick C. Smith

Mislead You On His REAL Record in Congress

You know that for four long years everybody in this 8th District has been reading about Congressman Dr. Frederick C. Smith's bad record of voting wrong against so many important legislative measures vitally needed for the defense and the welfare of America. We are war now. We need in Congress men of better judgment.

Congressman Smith's big newspaper ads and radio talks that try to defend his record cannot confuse, mislead or make the people forget his REAL record of bad voting against many measures needed to provide our soldiers with ships, guns and planes to defend themselves and to save America.

The fact that Congressman Smith ran more than eight thousand votes behind the best of his ticket at the last election is proof that the voters will not be misled by radio talks and big, full-page ads this time.

Space Permits Only a Few Of Many Examples Of

Bad Judgment Showing You How Congressman

Smith Failed America When America Was In Danger

May 8, 1939 Congressman Smith, Failed America when he voted Against the Naval Establishment Bill.

May 24, 1939, Smith Failed America by voting Against the Coast Guard Bill for the Expansion of our Naval Defense. The loss of life along our Coast has been heavy and would be heavier still had Congressman Smith succeeded in defeating this Defense Measure.

June 30, 1939, Congressman Smith voted Against shipping arms to other Nations for self-defense.

March 12, 1940, Congressman Smith of Marion, Failed America by voting Against Naval Expansion.

Aug. 12, 1941, Congressman Smith Failed America, by voting to disband a large part of the American Army just four months before we were attacked by Japan.

Oct. 17, 1941, Congressman Smith Failed America, by voting Against Arming Merchant Vessels that were soon to be attacked by submarines. Had Congressman Smith had his way our sailors would have been defenseless for lack of arms.

These are only a few of the many examples of how Congressman Frederick C. Smith Failed America when America was in danger. Nov. 3rd elect to Congress men of better judgment.

What would have happened to America had the majority of the men in Congress used the bad judgment shown by Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion?

This 8th District needs a new Congressman who will go to work for you, stay on the job and NOT play politics.

Dear Mom

Thursday P. M.

Dear Mom:

You'll never know what a thrill it was to get that swell box from home today! As we stood around wisecracking at barracks mail call, the fellows were yelling guesses as to which letter was mine from Mary, like they sometimes do. Wham! The Sergeant shoved a package at me—I could tell from the wrappings that it was like the other one, the one you sent last last month.

I pushed through the mob of men in our outfit and my buddies were close on my heels. They remembered, too! No one was disappointed. I passed the candy and gum and fruit and the coke around . . . but as everyone was cramming their stomachs with an additional "mess" around by bunk, I hurriedly put away the cigarettes, shaving cream, tooth powder—you remembered my favorite brands—and the stationery with the Air Corps emblem. I just can't imagine a soldier's box that could be more satisfactory!

I read your letter, sitting on my foot locker while the fellas were stuffing and talking and saying what good taste you have. When I came to the last paragraph, where you said you had bought me another Bond, I was proud on another count . . . that my folks are doing their part by buying War Bonds all the time, too! More and better folks like you—that's the kind of slogan this man's army needs!

Thank Dad, too, 'cause I know that he has his hand in it all . . . I can hear the two of you discussing what to get at dinner and Tommy and Sue butting in with their sage advice. Make it a kiss all around from me. Thanks for everything from the whole barracks!

Love,

Bob

Production's New Phase

THE President's explanation that statistical goals of planes and tanks are being adjusted in the light of battle experience to smaller numerical proportions for the sake of quality is another sign of the new phase that production has entered.

The statistical goals in each case were more than ample and were so recognized at the time. It was inevitable that before they could be reached there would be both quantitative and qualitative adjustments. An earlier adjustment, for instance, was made in naval building when experience showed there was greater need for aircraft carriers than for battleships.

Battle experience in the air has revealed the importance of heavy as against light planes, a revelation that might have won the war against Britain for Germany in 1940 if the Germans had not miscalculated. In this connection, Louis P. Lochner, former chief of the Associated Press in Berlin, now lecturing on his observations of Germany's war preparation, beseeches his countrymen not to become discouraged over inability to win the war suddenly. Germany, he explains, had the benefit of experience in Spain to show what was needed for modern war. When it occupied Czechoslovakia, moreover, it had the privilege of studying that country's fortifications, which were designed by the same engineers who worked on the Maginot line.

In the phase of production now beginning, the United States will produce the weapons that will win the war during or after 1943. Quantity will be important, but the secret will be their battle-tested superiority over the weapons of the Axis.

Thought for Mussolini

ITALY, the also-ran member of the Axis, has suffered more from its Nazi ally than from its enemies—a neglected circumstance that may speak volumes about the grand strategy of the United Nations.

The bombing of Genoa, pending further raids on that and other cities, may be called a token raid. It has been rumored that Hitler and Mussolini were about to get together for another of their meetings. It is a fact that large amounts of war material for Rommel in Libya have been moving to Africa from Genoa and other ports.

While Italy, eventually may be cut away from the Axis and may be getting off easy on the theory that suffering would unite Italians behind Mussolini, it must be gratifying for British aviators to remind them of the war occasionally with something more exciting than their humiliation as Germany's frustrated allies. Like the Germans, it will do no harm for Italians to realize that airplanes have spoiled the fun of conquest on foreign soil. There are no places of safety any more.

News and the Election

ONE ticklish possibility that practical politicians in both parties are bound to think about is the effect of war news on the election results Nov. 3.

Republican hopes of substantial gains might be deflated by any evidence of important success, particularly in the Solomons. Conversely, any evidence of a setback might brighten Republican prospects.

This situation must be considered in the light of the government's control of information. Ever since the Japanese began their counter-attack in the Solomons, navy communiqués have been current, minimizing the possibility of holding up had news until after the elections but also making it possible to release good news immediately without causing undue surprise.

The war cannot be managed to suit the convenience of political parties, but information about the war is something else. The Roosevelt administration will forestall the possibility of post-election criticism if it makes doubly certain for the next few days that no information which might affect public opinion on the conduct of the war is held up without reasons far more understandable than the reason which caused loss of fliers and planes in the Tokyo raid to be slushed until six months after the event.

Hitler's Typewriter Strategists

THE TITLE of this editorial is intentionally misleading, because there aren't any typewriter strategists in Germany. Whatever the kibitzers have to say about military affairs is whispered behind the hand.

Adolf Hitler is the only expert with official standing. He consults his generals and admirals, but if they don't agree with him it's likely to be their last consultation. There is no friction whatever.

Those who thought Germany was making a mistake by tackling Russia, for instance, never had a chance to say so in public. If the German people thought so, they told one another about it furtively.

Those who thought Hitler was making a mistake by committing himself to take Stalingrad before winter kept their own counsel, or bore the consequences. It may turn out yet, of course, that the fuhrer is infallible, but if it turns out otherwise it will be some comfort, perhaps, to know that the decision which ruined Germany and proved to be the turning point of the war was all his.

News Behind the News

Proposal To Dry Up Army Camp Areas
Painful for Senators.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Most painful vote of the year for senators came on the Lee proposal to dry up army camp areas, although the votes were confined to the cloakroom.

It made the author, Senator Lee of Oklahoma, the most unpopular man in congress.

With the election in which they must face the voters only next week, here was Senator Lee (whose own election situation at home was reported more favorable than theirs) requiring them to vote on a proposition which the dry voters wanted and their administration did not want.

As uncomfortable as any was the administration Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky. He was an old-time dry, and in 1917 proposed the house bill which brought the first prohibition, a bill prohibiting the use of liquor in the manufacture of liquor in wartime.

War Secretary Stimson's opposition to the amendment, and perhaps some other pressure on Barkley that was not so obvious made him take another stand this time. He could not do otherwise, as he was the leader.

It was he who figured out the side-tracking device by which the whole matter was thrust back into the Senate military affairs committee.

News

What is known as "the liberal element" is now going after the war department news bureau for not having told (and, incidentally, also the Japs—that one of the hostile bombers was lost in the Tokyo raid last April).

This group has long cast a longing eye at the war, as well as the navy, news section, as the only two remaining outside Elmer Davis' OWI fold.

Other matters being brought up against the war news department are that it publicly indicated Ford's bomber production was under way long before the assembly line was actually turning out any appreciable number of planes and that it got involved in a financial mess in a prizefight.

The fact is the department publicly was technically accurate, but deceptive in what it failed to tell about the lost bomber and the Ford production.

If there are two subjects which can be considered valid military secrets, it is the subjects of losses and plane production. If the American public was ill-informed, so was Hitler, and the results of that action will do the public more good than if the announcements were candidly made.

As for the Louis-Corn fight, it was not a military secret and does not matter.

The only reason the subjects are being mentioned is to put civilian authority over war and navy. No one contends the OWI would have handled the matter any differently.

This government has always stood against civilian or political administrative control of either the army or navy. The idea was to make them independent, keep them out of politics.

While the commander-in-chief in the White House has always been their constitutional head, the reduction of their press system to subservience, under civilian government administration, would be a revolutionary encroachment.

Davis Polley

The Davis experiment in centralized control of government news (and official views as well) has developed into a novel news dispensing administration.

The only way to describe it is that it follows the line of the personality of one man, Mr. Davis—fairness, level-headedness, but unexpectedly strong power. Out of it you get straighter news, but I think, less news.

An example was the strangely objective and detailed analysis of American plane efficiency, announced by Mr. Davis. In it he said some of them were as bad as had been said, but some types were good, and all would be better.

No one questions the facts Mr. Davis set forth, but for the government to announce that anything it had done was not the best ever done, and that anyone who said differently was a liar, was a startling innovation in government publicity.

Here you had the government not only conducting its own advertising, but its own criticism.

Strong Administration

Not only in tone, but in administration, Mr. Davis is both strong and unique. All officials are required to clear their speeches, as well as their announcements, through him. Even the independent war production board publicity has been taken over by him.

The result is a tightening up on language all down the line. Subordinate experts in various government departments are afraid to discuss matters with newsmen.

Thus the notably efficient formula for censorship and news which Mr. Davis has worked out is proving both good and bad. It has ended confusion in official statements, but it has tended to promote uniform news, to destroy independent initiative in reporting, and, therefore, on the whole to permit less news.

Life on the Fiji Islands

A National Geographic Bulletin.

ESTABLISHMENT of American bases in the Fiji Islands, as disclosed in a navy communiqué, is a matter of interest likely to be clouded with a number of misconceptions.

Greater in total area than the Hawaiian Islands, the 250 Fijis are exceeded in their region of the Pacific only by New Caledonia, the Solomons, the Bismarcks and New Guinea. Viti Levu, 75 miles long and 50 miles wide, is the biggest of the group.

The Fijis have a temperate climate owing to their size and the mountains which intercept the clouds and cool air currents. Temperatures seldom top 90 degrees F., rarely go below 65. Clothing that Americans or Europeans would wear at home is comfortable. White people thrive in this healthful land. Malaria is absent.

The entire population has taken to Christianity ways. Current editions of the islands are mild-mannered, courteous and kindly. At the war's outbreak, the population included about 4,000 Europeans, 101,000 natives and 92,000 East Indians "imported" for sugar production because the natives do not like plantation work.

Industrial plants in operation in normal times included sugar mills, rice mills, cotton gins, saw mills, slaughter houses and biscuit bakeries. The trade in coconut kernels was second only to the sugar business. Roads are few. Boats and launches provided local transportation.

Suva, chief city, population about 4,000 has a deep harbor, about two miles square, a waterworks, electric lights, and telephones. The main business street is flanked with concrete buildings.

Luxuriant vegetation clothes valleys, hills and mountains. Rainfall is heavy, averaging at Suva about 120 inches a year. Mt. Victoria, the highest peak rises 4,500 feet.

"Hashing" Goes Out

BERKELEY, Calif.—"Hashing," time-honored occupation by which college students worked for their meals, has all but vanished.

With a well-paid defense jobs available, men students are not interested. Some sororities rotate their own members on a cooperative basis, one has put in cafeteria service and some eat one meal a day.

Stanford university had arranged to have eleven minor offenders paroled from the county jail to work in campus cafeterias. Then a university official forbade the experiment.

Get Ready for New Income Taxes Now

Advice Is Still Free: Every thing Else Will Cost Money.

COMPLETION of legislative action on the $9,600,000,000 war revenue bill, levied tax measure in history, is the signal for every family and individual in the United States to begin keeping accurate account-books.

The bill puts a premium on accurate records. Ten million persons who never paid taxes before are going to have to fork over next March 15. At least 4,000,000 persons who never even filled out an income tax blank will be put on the spot next spring. A total of approximately 32,000,000 persons will file returns on their income for 1942, and all but 4,000,000 will owe the government something.

Importance of having accurate records of money spent comes from the high rate and exemptions specified in the new legislation.

The treasury is about to take a minimum of 18 cents of every dollar earned above the personal exemption figures of $500 a year for the unmarried and $1,200 a year for the married. Six of the 19 cents will be normal income tax. The other 13 cents will be surtax.

Therefore it is important to take the full advantage of every deduction allowable. In other words, with a minimum 19 per cent federal income tax payable on every taxable dollar, you can save a minimum of 95 cents for every $5 deductible from taxable income.

When you file your return, you will need records to consult on what was paid out in 1942 for doctor bills and health and accident insurance.

You will need to keep track of all money paid out on insurance policies in force before Sept. 1, 1942.

Money paid on debts owed on Sept. 1, 1942, and on interest is an important detail of the bookkeeping every taxpayer must do from now on.

Careful listings of money paid for War Stamps and Bonds will be essential.

Make careful records of money paid for taxes. Payments on federal income taxes can be deducted, but nearly every other bit of direct tax money paid is deductible. Watch sales taxes and federal excise taxes on transportation, furs, jewelry, etc., particularly.

Keep track of all contributions to churches and established charity and welfare organizations.

When your employer begins to collect the 5 per cent Victory tax on Jan. 1, 1943, keep the receipts you will receive. You are entitled to a credit on the amount paid of 25 per cent if you are single, 40 percent if married and an additional 2 per cent for each dependent.

FOR years before war spending made a broader income tax essential it was argued that the best way to create a stronger sense of financial responsibility would be to add to the total number of taxpayers contributing directly to the treasury in the nationwide March 15 roundup.

That proposition now is to be tested. The new tax bill will make income taxation a major concern in most of the families of the United States.

While part of the legislation's purpose is to avert inflation by drawing off income that otherwise would be spent for a rapidly dwindling supply of consumer goods, there will be many families affected by the new tax rates who will not have the advantage of surplus money. Only the most careful budgeting will save them from financial disaster.

The effect on the salaried workers as a class, because their earnings have not increased appreciably since war began, will be most severe.

But perhaps the hardest blow will be at the expense of wage earners who have reaped the benefit of high wage rates in wartime industry. In most cases, they have not been accustomed to taxes sufficiently heavy to necessitate advance planning. They have increased their tax burden when they came to them. But from now on, the bridges must be anticipated.

The best free advice they can get now is to plan ahead. In 1943 they must make careful budgets and stay within them. Meanwhile they should be rounding up all the records they can compile of their spending in 1942—and keeping the records up to date.

From now until the end of the war and for a long time thereafter March 15 will be a day of reckoning for virtually everybody who earns money.

When your employer begins to collect the 5 per cent Victory tax on Jan. 1, 1943, keep the receipts you will receive. You are entitled to a credit on the amount paid of 25 per cent if you are single, 40 percent if married and an additional 2 per cent for each dependent.

FOR years before war spending made a broader income tax essential it was argued that the best way to create a stronger sense of financial responsibility would be to add to the total number of taxpayers contributing directly to the treasury in the nationwide March 15 roundup.

That proposition now is to be tested. The new tax bill will make income taxation a major concern in most of the families of the United States.

While part of the legislation's purpose is to avert inflation by drawing off income that otherwise would be spent for a rapidly dwindling supply of consumer goods, there will be many families affected by the new tax rates who will not have the advantage of surplus money. Only the most careful budgeting will save them from financial disaster.

The effect on the salaried workers as a class, because their earnings have not increased appreciably since war began, will be most severe.

When you file your return, you will need records to consult on what was paid out in 1942 for doctor bills and health and accident insurance.

You will need to keep track of all money paid out on insurance policies in force before Sept. 1, 1942.

Money paid on debts owed on Sept. 1, 1942, and on interest is an important detail of the bookkeeping every taxpayer must do from now on.

WOWS ARE ADDED TO WAACS, WAVES

Women Ordnance Workers Form New Unit.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—You've heard of the WAACS and the WAVES—well, now it's the WOWS. They are the Women Ordnance Workers, Inc., and their subtitle gives it, "the girls behind the men behind the guns"—a uniformed organization of women who are turning out armaments.

The corps is nearly 500 strong now, but its founders hope the idea, conceived in a Chicago ordnance plant, will spread to the hundreds of thousands of girls and women working in the nation's war production plants.

The uniforms are two piece, khaki outfits of gored skirts and jackets with gold buttons. A white shirt is worn under the jacket with collar showing. The cap is overseas style with WOW on it. Work on the jacket is a medallion—a shield superimposed upon crossed cannon, bearing the letters WOW, and topped by wings of the eagle and the monogram USA.

Their activities—sports, theater parties, loans and educational activities—are designed to make the women forget about being lonely. They write letters to the boys in camps and overseas and to top it all off they've collected $200 to pierce and ship Christmas boxes to service men far away from home.

GASOLINE RATION RULES TIGHTENED

OPA Restricts Number Eligible for "OC" Cards.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—A general tightening of eligibility for "OC" ration of gasoline, in connection with nationwide mileage rationing beginning Nov. 22, was announced today by the office of price administration.

OPA announced the elimination of all types of rationing from the rationing mileage class, "OC" rationing may be issued to certain maintenance and repairmen provided that "transportation is sought for purposes of selling, merchandising or promoting."

Under the automobile plan no ration for occupational driving will be allowed unless the applicant establishes either that he has formed a ride-sharing arrangement with at least three other persons, or that this is not feasible and that no reasonably adequate alternative means of transportation is available.

Even where a ride-sharing arrangement is shown, however, no supplemental ration will be issued where the driver while the board has failed to "conform to a schedule of travel by subway, elevated or railway transportation service and that these facilities are adequate for the applicant's purposes."

In no event will more than 470 miles of occupational driving a month be allowed unless the applicant is within one of the preferred mileage classifications.

There are 20 preferred mileage use groups, comprising only 14 under the present eastern rationing plan.

The eligibility base was broadened in the case of teachers and school officials whose duties require travel from one institution to another. The eastern plan allowed preferred mileage only to public school officials, but the new plan gives the same status to teachers and officials of parochial and other recognized schools.

The new plan also provides preferred mileage for the collection of scrap material, and to certain Red Cross officials.

African Action May Be Turning Point of the War

By DEWITT MCKENZIE

LONDON, Oct. 26—The British offensive in Egypt may develop into a general offensive in the Middle East, but at this early stage we must expect ourselves with the fact that the allies finally have secured the offensive there and that they have made considerable progress in their fighting.

The great stage involved in the control of the Mediterranean and the Middle East. The allies have demonstrated their will and their power.

Long ago, when the Russo-Nazi conflict first began, I was asked to give a standard reply to readers could gauge the daily progress of the war then.

If Hitler could reach the lower Caucasus and the Middle East he would have gone far toward winning the war. This was so because he would have a quoted inch of land and other resources without which he could not hope for victory and he would have secured strategic bases calculated to enable him to bring his hold on the Mediterranean.

If the Nazis did not succeed in this great endeavor, he would be better off.

The Nazi-allied forces decided on a vast offensive movement. The left flank of the plan was represented by his drive against the Russian Caucasus. The right flank was represented by his drive against the Middle East.

As things stand if the allies can drive the Boche and their unhappily Italian henchmen out of northern Africa, we shall have secured in operation which deprives Hitler of his all but last hope of winning victory out of the war.

The battle line now is confined to a comparatively narrow strip of desert between the Mediterranean on the north and the great Gattara depression on the south. Within this strip lie many edges. Among them the Germans and Italians have "bug themselves in" after the manner of the last war and have fortified their position strongly with mine fields and artillery.

As a result it isn't possible for the allies to follow the customary procedure of modern desert fighting and to attack with the tanks leading. It would be suicidal to attempt to rush in against impenetrable fortifications.

MURDER on the Campus

By JERRY BRONFIELD

CHAPTER SIX
Trinidad Club

HUMPHRIES turned off the main highway onto a road that led outside the city. There was a slight smile on his face as he drove the last three miles to the Trinidad Club.

Beckett's Trinidad Club was a plush side and no rifle was in the door. He looked only the better for it, and he got it. A man named Duke Malone, didn't you?

Beckett's eyes never wavered. "I know him. Why?" "Well, some friends and I got talking about big-time gamblers one night and his name came up. Someone said Duke Malone came here from England and I insisted he was a native American. He was, wasn't he?"

Beckett's face relaxed a trifle. "Sure he was an American." "I knew it," Phil said, getting a note of triumph in his voice. "From St. Louis, wasn't he?" "Nevada," Humphries smiled. "Nevada, in 'Evening, Mr. Humphries," he said softly. "Howdy, Joe—Beckett, in?" Joe nodded. Phil strolled inside to the beautifully mirrored bar. A high-backed, imitation starlet ceiling covered the room. He had a drink and then walked through to the roulette room.

Riley Beckett was small and wiry with flinty gray hair. He rarely smiled but he had impeccable manners. His highly polished nails gleamed as he extended a hand to Phil.

Phil drew him aside. "Like to talk to you a minute, Riley." Beckett took out a stick of chewing gum. "I hope it's about that two thousand, but go ahead, I'm listening."

"Not tonight on the two thousand—or even part of it. Next week, for sure." Phil lit a cigarette. "Riley, you must have known a man named Duke Malone, didn't you?"

Beckett's eyes never wavered. "I know him. Why?" "Well, some friends and I got talking about big-time gamblers one night and his name came up. Someone said Duke Malone came here from England and I insisted he was a native American. He was, wasn't he?"

Beckett's face relaxed a trifle. "Sure he was an American." "I knew it," Phil said, getting a note of triumph in his voice. "From St. Louis, wasn't he?" "Nevada," Humphries smiled. "Nevada, records in the University registrar's office, was born in Reno, Lieutenant Leo Drake had mentioned.

Phil Humphries wasn't quite sure what he had in mind. He wasn't even sure he disliked Todd Malone personally, but it might be a good idea to set him down a peg or two. The Great Malone! Round-eyed freshmen held their breath looking at him.

Wild Project

Susan, pajama clad, stretched full length on her bed and stared hard at the ceiling. After a moment or two she rolled over and looked across the room at her roommate. "Amy, what kind of ideas have you for a date for me for the dance?"

Amy looked surprised. "You mean you of all people have a problem? You mean you're not asking Phil Humphries?"

Susan sighed. "Sorry to state this is one time I won't have the smoothest article at the Delta Sig Fall Frolic. Best I can do, in any case, is take second honors. Phil, unfortunately, has to attend a chemistry forum in Chicago next week-end."

Amy made a sympathetic clicking sound with her tongue. "You poor thing. With enough phone calls and men asking you for dates to fill three girls' lives and you have a problem?"

Susan sat up suddenly and snapped her fingers. "I'll do it!" "It's revolutionary, no doubt," Amy said laconically. "I'll ask him," Susan went on, unheeding. "Who, Prexy? Buck Kilgore, the campus cop?"

"Dope! But almost as remote, though," Susan admitted, hastily, resting her chin on her knees. "I'm going to call Todd Malone."

Amy's legs came off her desk with a bang. She put down the notebook she was holding. "Todd Malone? So you've taken to trading juana at last. What makes you think you can succeed where dozens of others, with more to offer, have failed him up?"

Susan pursed her lips. "Todd Malone last week offered to buy me a coke. I have reason to believe," she continued, "that that constitutes some sort of high water mark on this campus."

"Good luck," Amy grinned, "and if you make it, don't forget your little roommate gets a dinner with him."

"I'll make you sit up on your hind legs and beg," Susan threatened. "Only 10 o'clock, then. I'll give him a ring right now."

Success

She dialed the Pi Gam house and a pledge answered. Susan asked to speak to Todd and a moment later he was on the wire. "Hello, quarterback," this is Susan Drake.

"Hi," he replied. "Well, go ahead—ask how I am," she prompted him, and she heard his laugh at the other end. "I called to ask you to our house dance a week from Saturday night—that's nine days' notice. Enough?"

She meant to be abrupt but she didn't figure she would take him by this much surprise; he didn't say anything for three or four seconds but it seemed like a minute.

"Dance?" he echoed. "Why—I don't know. I—"

"Do you have a date that night?" she cut in.

"No, but—"

"No buts—and I'm not used to pleading a case when it involves nothing more important was it? Thanks, Riley. See you next week." "I'll be expecting you," Beckett said, walking him to the door. "I know, bringing up Duke Malone's name reminds me. Duke's been doing a stretch over in the big house at Centerville but I understand he's due for a parole, soon. Ever do any business with the Duke?"

It was all Phil could do to keep his excessive interest from being mirrored on his face. "Is that so?" he said mildly. "No, I never knew Malone. He operated mostly west."

Phil got into his car and headed back to town. So Duke Malone was to be paroled soon. Very interesting. It was interesting, too, that Duke Malone was from Nevada. Rather coincidental that Todd Malone, according to the records in the University registrar's office, was born in Reno, Lieutenant Leo Drake had mentioned.

Phil Humphries wasn't quite sure what he had in mind. He wasn't even sure he disliked Todd Malone personally, but it might be a good idea to set him down a peg or two. The Great Malone! Round-eyed freshmen held their breath looking at him.

Again he laughed. "Okay—call off your dogs. You flattered and flattered on your invitation. But my word that night will appear on what we do in Michigan State last afternoon."

"It's a date—and all in my favor," she said.

There was a triumphant expression on Susan's face when she entered her room. "Scrape low—you're looking at the first Delta Sig—od the first anybody on record—who was able to land Mr. Todd Malone for a dance," she said to Amy.

Amy's eyes popped. "The winner and new champion. How'd you do it?" "Now that you ask me," Susan told her, "I don't know. I'll have to make further study of the subject."

CANDIDATES START FINAL VOTE DRIVE

Bricker and McSweeney To Debate in Cleveland.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 26—Ohio gubernatorial candidates Gov. Bricker and former Congressman John McSweeney launched intensive last-week speaking tours today to add the finishing touches to their election campaigns.

Popular northern Ohio, Cleveland and Cuyahoga county in particular, drew the bulk of attention, although both nominees were slated for appearances in Cincinnati. McSweeney will broadcast addresses on local radio stations each night this week, while Bricker will make his regular Monday night speeches over statewide radio hookup.

Climax of the campaign will be the face-to-face meeting of Bricker and McSweeney to debate the campaign issues before the Cleveland City club Saturday.

Bricker, in Cincinnati today, will attend a rally in Dayton tonight. His weekly broadcast will originate in Dayton. The governor will attend a series of day meetings in Lakewood and Cleveland Tuesday, address rallies in New Philadelphia, Canton and Akron Wednesday, ward meetings and the Kiwanis club dinner meeting in Cleveland Thursday, a teachers' meeting in Cleveland and a rally in Toledo Friday, and an Ashland county rally Saturday after the Cleveland debate. Sunday he will be in Cleveland all day and return to Columbus Monday for his radio address.

McSweeney starts the stretch drive appearing at the Lake county rally in Mentor and a round of meetings in Cleveland Tuesday he goes to Chardon, Ashland, Cuyahoga and Youngstown, Wednesday to Alliance and Akron, Thursday to Steubenville, Friday to Cincinnati, Saturday and Sunday to Cleveland, and Monday to New Philadelphia, Millersburg and Stark county.

G.O.P. Chances of Winning Control of House Fading, Poll of Voters Indicates

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 26—

Latest reports from interviewers for the Institute across the nation indicate that Republican chances to win control of the house of representatives in November are fast fading.

The trend toward the G.O.P. in the congressional voting came to a halt early in October, and today the Democrats seem to be gathering strength.

Despite probable Republican victories in gubernatorial races in many of the largest states, the election nationally will indicate no great political upheaval, no overall shift in the tide of political sentiment from coast to coast.

Whereas six weeks to a month ago it looked possible for the Republicans, if the trend at that time had continued, to pick up enough additional seats to win control of the house, today it appears that the party line-up in congress will not be radically different from what it has been since 1938.

The Democrats will not only keep control of the house, judging by present indications, but will continue to have a substantial majority of the seats.

The Republicans may pick up a few additional seats, indeed, there may be shakable G.O.P. gains in some areas in the east and middle west. But these will be partially offset by Democratic gains in the far west.

52% for Democrats

The latest Institute survey, completed this week, shows that if election were held at this time, the vote cast for Democratic candidates for congress throughout the nation would amount to 52 per cent of the two-party total. The Republicans would poll the remaining 48 per cent.

Translating these percentages into seats, on the basis of past elections, the indicated Democratic total would be between 215 and 265 seats, while the Republicans would have between 167 and 187 seats. Minor parties would likely win a total of three seats.

Here is how such a division compares with the composition of the house after the 1938 and 1940 elections:

| | Democratic Seats | Republican Seats |
|----------------------------------|------------------|------------------|
| 1938 Election | 262 | 169 |
| 1940 Election | 268 | 162 |
| If 1942 Election Were Held Today | 245 to 265 | 167 to 187 |

In terms of popular vote, the party line-up this year is likely to be very similar to that of the last two elections. The estimated 52 per cent for the Democrats this time compares with 51 per cent in the congressional elections two years ago and 51 per cent four years ago. The difference between this year's percentage and the 1940 vote is largely

SHORTAGE OF SCRAP NO LONGER PROBLEM

Operations To Run at 99 Per Cent of Capacity.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26—The supply of scrap metal is no longer a brake on steel production, and only the necessity for repairs to open-hearth furnaces is now holding down output.

This appraisal was published today in the magazine "Steel," which computed nationwide steel-works operations as continuing at 99 per cent of capacity.

"Results of the nationwide scrap salvage drive have exceeded expectations in many districts," the weekly summary said. "Further campaigns to obtain industrial scrap are underway, salesmen from warehouses and other branches of the steel industry canvassing plants for obsolete machinery or other steel material not in use. This source is expected to yield an abundance of scrap of better grade than is collected from household stores."

"Steel consumers are given no assurance by mills that deliveries will be made during fourth quarter against orders with low ratings assigned on production requirements plan certificates. Pressure for steel bars, carbon, alloy and cold-finished has increased to the point that deliveries are delayed eight to ten weeks, even on A-1 ratings."

Pittsburgh district production dropped 1½ points to 87½ per cent last week, but Cleveland moved up 2½ to 98½, Detroit 5 to 93 and Cincinnati 5 to 97. Youngstown was stationary at 95 and Wheeling held at 79½.

CALLING AMERICA

IT'S NAVY DAY

And it's a great day this year, because American Victories on the sea have already shown that the United Nations will be triumphant in bringing this war to a successful conclusion. The course is not clear: the hazards are great: there will be more stormy battles, and stories of individual heroism by officers, and by boys just like the one you see here. He might come from the state of Washington, or Maine, Texas or Ohio. He might be your boy or your neighbor's. Just a lad who went to school and played pranks; grew up and got a job, dated his girl, and lived a pretty routine life until December 7th. Then the enemy struck, and that changed everything. He knew he had a bigger job to do: he had a war on his hands—to win. And so as soon as he calmed Mom down he joined the navy; trained hard and worked hard. He learned a new language, how to scrub a deck, how to scale the ladder to the look-out, and how to load and fire tons of gun! Maybe he's been under fire himself; so many of our ships have been torpedoed. But he's ready to shove off again, and there'll be no stopping our boy in blue, until Victory is won. So this Navy Day we join all America in praying "Godspeed" to our fighters of the sea.

CHEERS and good wishes aren't enough to back up the men of our navy who risk their lives with every duty they assume! You can really help them win this war soon, and come home to those they love—by buying more War Bonds, no matter how much of a sacrifice you make, here at home....

Well Done!

through the years . . . 1775 to 1942

"I have not begun to fight!" — John Paul Jones, 1775.

"Damn the torpedoes — full speed ahead!" — Farragut at Mobile Bay.

"You may fire when ready, Gridley!" — Dewey at Manila Bay.

We salute you—U. S. Navy—in whose magnificent history the story of America is so closely interwoven. In recognition of your glorious contribution to our Freedom in the past . . . in tribute to your gallant fighting today . . . we say "Well Done!" The heritage of Jones and Farragut and Dewey is your heritage. You have accepted it proudly, with the same courage and determination that gave us Victory in other wars. The history of America is your history. For if there had been no man like John Paul Jones to shout "I have not begun to fight!" . . . if there had been no Dewey at Manila Bay . . . if there were no men like the Navy flier who reported "Sighted Sub, Sank Same" . . . if these men had never lived and fought in the U. S. Navy, there might be no freedom for Americans today.

Today, to the Navy heroes of all our wars, we add the names of the brave officers and men who are fighting at this very moment on the far seas of the world for our Freedom and the flag we live under. Now, as in 1775, America has a war to win. Our fighting men and ships are engaged in a battle greater than anything John Paul Jones could have envisioned. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines are fighting the good fight on two oceans . . . and from the broad decks of carriers, fighting planes are carrying the glorious Navy tradition to the skies. Ships have changed a lot since the days of the "Bon-homme Richard" . . . even as you read this new discoveries in shipbuilding are charting the course of tomorrow's Victories on the high seas. The only thing that remains unchanged is the courage of the Navy's fighting men. This is the spirit that will repeat again and again the Victories of Manila Bay and the Coral Sea, and preserve forever those precious Freedoms that are America.

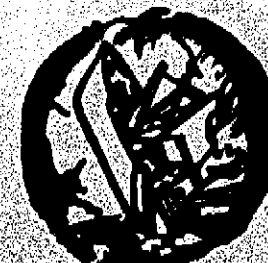

And so, on Navy Day, October 27th, we pause to pay tribute to the officers and men of the U. S. Navy who are daily fulfilling the glorious tradition handed down by the Naval heroes of long ago. Those of us who are not in the Navy pledge today to do everything in our power to help them get the Victory job done . . . to speed the day when the light of Freedom will shine again from sea to sea.

"Sighted sub, sank same!" — Ensign Mason after a Patrol Flight.

"Send us more Japs!" — U. S. Marines at Wake Island.

"Bunch of flat top!" — Battle of the Coral Sea, 1942.
